Saturday evening, all candidates received a Certificate of Excellence from AIE's General Secretary Evelyne Schellekens. We congratulate the golden, silver and bronze boys!! She stressed in her speech towards the candidates and the experts that everybody should be proud of its participation as selected representatives for their country for the Electrical Installations competition in Lille!

She stated: "Keep your passion for your sector and share it with others, since you are an example for others that will choose for a profession within the electrical installation branch. You all had a unique experience and you have an excell note to place on your curriculum vitae! Don't you ever forget that!"

To all the experts and candidates we would like to say: 'You have shown us that 'Excellence' is not a single act, but a good habit!'

Evelyne Schellekens and the 13 CYE-WSE 2014 candidates holding the AIE certificate of Excellence

Two important decisions were made during these three days of competition:

The AIE and Euroskills' experts agreed to have the AIE – European Association of Electrical Contractors - as a platform for the experts to communicate and share views and experiences before, during and after the competition! Secondly, the AIE is thankful to the Euroskills organisation for providing the huge media coverage!

In addition, the AIE as Worldskills Europe associate member stimulates the networking between members, experts and stakeholders of the installation sector. By daily blogging and posting on AIE's digital communication channels, the electrical installation sector is put in the spotlight, whilst enhancing the visibility of the electrical branch.

The AIE encourages everyone to promote and publish both the aie-cye blog and the facebook page on their own digital media, to show what highly skilled electricians of today can manage and to what future apprentices can reach for!

As Worldskills Europe stated in their press release:

EuroSkills 2014 wasn't only about competing for the nearly 90.000 visitors it was about discovering and trying trades, getting information about training programs and meeting tomorrow's highly qualified young European professionals. It was also the place where a lot of European leaders of industry, education and training came together at different organized seminars, conferences and meetings.
